

On 28th October over 200 people from Blue Mountains City Church will volunteer their time, skills and resources to renovate Nepean High School. This initiative has been organised through 'Elevate', which is the community arm of Blue Mountains City Church.

Recently, Mike Kelly (Elevate Director) and Alan Douglas (Business Manager) met with acting Principal Tony Baldacchino and presented him with the opportunity to partner together in this community project.

"We told Tony that we wanted to serve him in whatever way we could and that we would supply all the necessary resources to renovate the building and gardens along with a fresh coat of paint" said Alan.

'Elevate' has been established to serve the real needs of the community reaching from the Plains and right across the Blue Mountains.

'Elevate' currently runs mentoring and leadership programs in a number of High Schools as well as running breakfast clubs which serve hundreds of students weekly. The mentoring programs have assisted students to make positive and significant changes in their lives.

The renovation of Nepean High School is one of the largest projects undertaken by 'Elevate' to date. Blue Mountains City Church is looking forward to partnering with the school to make this community project a success.
